PEZALLI

BESPOKE

Pezalli brings to asia, what gave london's Saville Row and Jermyn Street their impeccable sophistication: cutting a shirt to a man's exact measurements and perfecting it through several fittings. The company is among the rare few whose bespoke service includes expert style consultations by an image consultant, advising the choice of design details, fabrics and colours that best suit each individual's physique, skin tone and life style.

Pezalli caters to the upper echelon of men in corporate and business, to offer them every aesthetic preference: from the tradition-minded man who wears a subtle but luxurious classic shirt with his suits as well as the adventurous man who loves to experiment with design, colour and pattern.

BESPOKE

This season, we undertake a journey towards the origin of elegance, of everything that is made well and exquisitely. The new collection reveals once more what lies behind the curtain of pezalli craftsmanship - exquisite construction, exceptional quality and distinctive details.

The cold tones of Winter are tinged with flashes of camel in a refined rice grain motif. The coat, made from an ultra-soft blend of flannel, features an outwear that cinches the silhouette for a highly expressive look for those who seek a bold outerwear option.

A maverick of the fashion world, this is a choice for the brave trend-setters who wish to stand out from the crowd. Opulent fabrics combined in contrasting, yet complementary, colour choices result in a quintessentially modern yet timeless style statement. The suit is made from brushed cotton in safari hues and pays homage to the designs of Pitti Umo. A great look for any travelling situation. Dramatic fashion at it's best!

The classic formal aesthetic suddenly takes on a renewed spirit and catches the eye, though never too loudly. The double-breasted suit will always hold a prominent place among the icons of menswear while also representing a truly contemporary choice for any work wardrobe. Though the chalkstripe has established itself as a menswear motif for the times, wearing a chalkstripe suit denotes a certain boldness in your selection.

The Classic has an attitude of maturity and confidence. Inspiring others to trust and have confidence in their abilities, classic styled garments are preferred over anything highly fashionable.

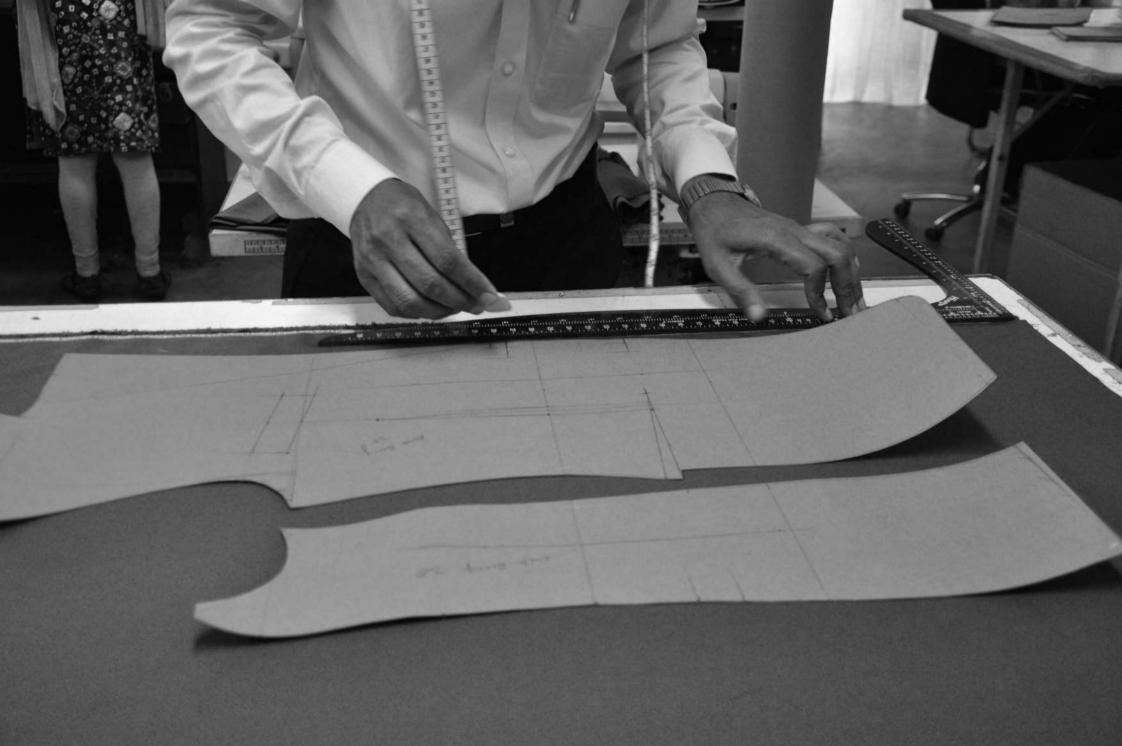

A man about town with a busy lifestyle that needs his wardrobe to match his vibrant personality. An elegant, individual silhouette coupled with ease of wear is the key to this look. A creative style which leaves a lasting impression. The suit is made from a traditional glen check fabric, which is a savvy choice favoured by icons of fashion for centuries. It's bang on trend for the coming season and has been seen on the runways of the greats like Calvin Klein and Versace to name but a few. A true gentleman's choice.

Little twists and subtle touches bring this look from the quiet boardroom to give the wearer more personality and individuality. Think outside the box and wear separates instead of the traditional two piece. A navy blazer looks great when paired with a complementary check trousers. It is still sticking to office rule but lets people know that you have a serious stylish side. This look embodies impeccable style and the whole ensemble results in a sophisticated and impressionable silhouette.

For the man who likes the causal look but also tries to dip his toe into the world of high end style, this look is all about staying comfortable and individual while still turning a few heads! A bomber jacket is the optimum starting point for this ensemble, and this one comes in a luxurious wool and cashmere blend. Decadent and intense in its colouring, it really is the main event. Add in some simple essentials and create a sophisticated yet sporty look. Layering is big here and formal wear is seriously shied away from. Not just for the weekend, the natural guy is slowly migrating into midweek wear, a welcome change for many the man!
